

ABSTRACT

A multi-layered garment system with a primary garment including a thermal layer having at least one raised surface and an outer shell garment including a body constructed of a tightly woven shell fabric. The shell fabric is breathable, water repellent, and wind resistant. The body of the shell has an upper portion and a lower portion. A vapor permeable moisture barrier that is waterproof and windproof covers the upper portion of the body.